Saddam's Capture Saves the Media

The Capture and anything the media can relate to it has grabbed the Headlines for now. I've not heard anyone speculate on whether or not it will impact on Illinois' Governor Blagojevich's political plans. That's a reach of course but knowing the media they just might try it.

Only Rhetoric Paid to the Fee Hikes

There was a lot of talk and bluster about rolling the fee hikes imposed on business & industry back to reasonable levels. But the action on the issue was pretty minimal. According to what I heard there were not so veiled threats of retaliation made to GA members that tried to pass legislation and I was further advised that members were ordered to vote to support the Governor's Amendatory vetoes. This plus an ethics bill coming together kept them over an extra day for Veto Session.

Wirsing Stricken

Representative Dave Wirsing (R-70, Sycamore) passed away suddenly of a heart attack on December 7, 2003. He was one of the nicest persons I became acquainted with. Every member of the General Assembly called him friend. He was friend and mentor to me and I'll miss him terribly. He got me reconnected with a favorite treat – orange slice candy – there was always a bowl on his desk and I helped myself – even to the point of offering to pay for replacing the supply. His response to that was "these are my treat to anyone who enjoys them and I get a great deal of satisfaction from handing them out."

Novak to Head PCB

Representative Phil Novak (D-79, Bradley) was tapped by Governor Blagojevich to take over the Chair of Illinois' Pollution Control Board. The lady named to finish out his term – Lisa Dugan – agreed to run for the post in 2004. Now she for sure has a well-known Republican name challenge – the wife of former Representative Chuck Pangle. Pangle has been a popular and respected County Board member.

Mary Kay O'Brien

There is no guarantee that this district will remain Democratic in the 2004 election cycle. Representative O'Brien will be moving to the Appeals Court and the Republicans are sure their candidate can be victorious.

Republicans Eying Gains in 2004

The Republicans are indeed optimistic they will boost their numbers from the current level of 52 House members to something closer to closer to 58 or 59. They feel confident they'll mount winnable challenges as discussed above. They also believe they can win the seat held by – now Ag Director Hartke. They are assuming that Democrats won't make inroads in Republican incumbent Districts.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Where does the time go? Winter is here again. I hope you all had a great season of work and a wonderful year all around. We have gotten some much needed rain this fall and I think next year will be good too.

I hope by now you have all made plans to attend the state convention in Peoria, it will be a good one, there are lots of good seminars lined up and the competition will be fierce at the backhoe rodeo, and there will be activities for the kids on Friday and Saturday so bring the family.

The national winter meeting is in Lexington, Kentucky. I hope to see Illinois well represented here as usual, it looks like they have a good program for us and the pre tours look interesting. Paul and Debbie do a great job. I always enjoy going to the national functions and talking with people from other parts of the country to share a different prospective on things.

We are having our spring workshop again in February on the 11 and 12th, Make plans to attend. The education committee has got a good program lined up and we will be introducing our certification program at this meeting.

We are going to have a conservation show in 2004 on August 24-25-26. Be sure and mark the dates on your calenders. Come out and support YOUR organization and run some new equipment and enjoy the fellowship of old friends and meet some new ones.

Take some time in the slow winter months, days when you are tired of repairing equipment, to go and see your fellow contractors and tell them about this organization you belong to and what it can do for them and their business. We need members if we are going to survive!

Thanks to all of you on the committees for the fine work you did this past year and to the board members for their time and energy to come to the meetings when you really needed to be working. The work and dedication of these people is what makes this organization what it is!

I would like to thank you all for supporting me as your President this past year, it was an enjoyable experience. THANK YOU!

May you have a safe and prosperous New Year.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE MINIBULK TANK DISPOSAL PROGRAM COMPLETES ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Program preparing for expansion

The Illinois Department of Agriculture, in conjunction with the Illinois Fertilizer Association and GROWMARK, collected 566 old pesticide mini-bulk tanks from agri-chemical dealers and farmers in the month of September to be recycled.

The recycling program grew from one site in Jacksonville last year to two this fall; one in Ottawa and the other in Ellery, Illinois.

"For years, chemical dealers and farmers have placed hundreds of these tanks in temporary storage facilities because many landfills wouldn't accept them and there was no other means of disposal," Agriculture Director Chuck Hartke said. "This program is a win-win for everyone. It helps out the dealer and the farmer, contributes to a healthy environment and provides a creative way to re-use this plastic. In the future it might show up as fence posts, parking curbs and more."

At the earlier event in Ottawa, 29, 850 lbs of plastic to be recycled while in Ellery, more than 36,000 lbs was collected. Agri-chemical dealers delivered clean, cut-up tanks to the location where IDOA and IFCA member volunteers inspected and loaded the tanks onto a semi truck. The material was delivered to Tri-Rinse in St Louis for recycling. By adding another pick up site this year to the program, an additional 200 mini-bulk tanks were collected.

"We hope to continue to grow the program to meet the demand," Illinois Fertilizer and Chemical Association Sr. Vice President Jean Trobec said. "Farmers and agri-chemical dealers traveled 50 to 100 miles to get rid of their tanks. Next year we're looking for new event locations and have already received several requests from dealers trying to bring it closer to their area."

Dealers pay $10 per tank to get rid of them. The mini-bulk recycling program also receives financial support from agriculture chemical manufacturers including BASF, Bayer, DuPont, Dow AgroSciences, Monsanto and Syngenta, as well as the Illinois Council on Best Management Practices.

For more information on the mini-bulk recycling programs or to request a local site for your region, contact Jean Trobec, IFCA, at 309-827-2774.

STATE AGRICULTURE DIRECTOR REMINDS FARMERS TO SECURE STATE AND LOCAL OVERWEIGHT PERMITS FOR TWO-AXLE TRUCK

Farmers should be sure to have all their inspection paperwork and permits in order this harvest season, according to Illinois Director of Agriculture Chuck Hartke.

"Obviously, our farmers are very busy right now in the fields and on the roads," Hartke said. "But I want to get the message to farmers that if their trucks are not properly licensed they could be facing hefty fines."

The Illinois Vehicle Code, enforced by Illinois State Police, has set very specific weight restrictions on all commercial vehicles, including those used for farming. The only trucks that can apply for a weight exemption are two axle trucks. Those permits can be obtained through county offices or the Illinois Department of Transportation. The fee for the permit is $5 for an axle weight less than 6,000 pounds and $8 for an axle weight between 6,000 and 11,000 pounds. The permits allow two axle trucks to carry 35% more weight than the maximum. "Farmers need to be aware State Police are enforcing all weight regulations on Illinois roads," Department of Agriculture Weights and Measures Program Manager Tad Tucker said. "Just recently a central Illinois farmer was stopped and ticketed for towing a wagon exceeding a gross weight of 70,000 pounds. The fine for that violation was in excess of $10,000."

State Police officers are carrying certified portable scales to enforce weight laws. The only way for farmers to avoid a violation is to know the weight limits and follow the law. Weight limits and regulations can be obtained through any local drivers license facility or by contacting the Department of Transportation permit office at 217-782-6271.

THE NEW LOOK 2004 NATIONAL RAFFLE

In February of this year a new raffle committee was formed. The committee reviewed many suggestions and comments from across the country.

At the Niagara Falls Summer Meeting they rolled out of the "New Look National Raffle". The grand prize selected is a fully loaded, Chevrolet Silverado LS 1500 with an extended cab. It was selected because of its broad appeal to many industries. It is believed it will stimulate additional interest in tickets sales. The committee also reduced the ticket price to $50 and the raffle ticket will be printed in full color.

Additional prizes will include: 2nd Prize: John Deere Diesel Construction Gator 6x4s, 3rd Prize: Trimble/Spectra Precision Laser, 4th Prize: $500 Cash and the 5th Prize: $250 Cash.

2004 RAFFLE GUIDELINES

1. Ticket Price $50.
2. Only 1500 ticket have been printed.
3. Tickets may not be discounted.
4. Tickets will be distributed through State Executive Directors.
5. Tickets are consecutively numbered.
6. Tickets must be returned by Feb. 27, 2004 at convention.
7. As a sales incentive all state chapters will receive $5.00 per ticket.

The Chapter who comes in...

First place will receive an additional $300

Second place will receive an additional $200

Third place will receive an additional $100

AUTO THEFT RISES FOR SECOND CONSECUTIVE YEAR

The FBI Uniform Crime Reports found that motor vehicle thefts in 2001 were up 5.7 percent over 2000. They reported an estimated 1.2 million vehicle thefts in 2001. The nation's vehicle theft rate per 100,000 people was up 4.5 percent in 2001, marking the second consecutive year of increases in the auto theft rate following a ten-year decline.

Thieves target a wide range of popular passenger vehicles, with sport utility vehicles, (SUVs), pickup trucks, and mini-vans particularly attractive targets, according to a study conducted by the National Insurance Crime Bureau (NICB). One-third (17) of the top 50 most commonly stolen vehicles in 2001 were these types of vehicles.

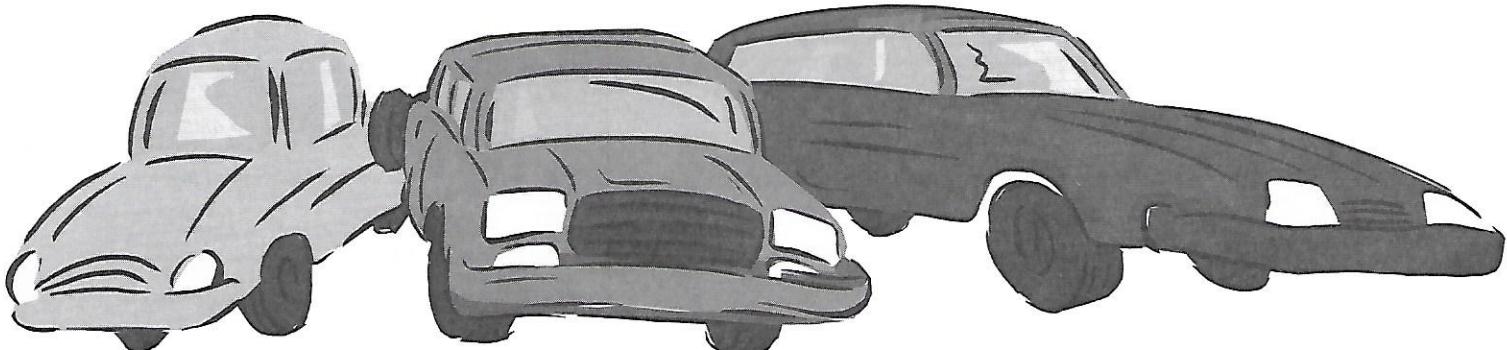

NICB said that the ten most commonly stolen vehicles in the United States in 2001 were:

- Toyota Camry
- Honda Accord
- Honda Civic
- Oldsmobile Cutlass/Supreme/Ciera
- Jeep Cherokee/Grand Cherokee
- Chevrolet Full Size C/K Pickup
- Toyota Corolla
- Ford Taurus
- Chevrolet Caprice
- Ford F150 Pickup

In 2001, the estimated total value of stolen motor vehicles was $8.2 billion. Approximately 62 percent of that amount was recovered.

AUTO ACCIDENTS

*Study shows fewer accidents,
more injury claims*

The frequency of auto accidents since 1980 has dropped by 16 percent. During the same period, however, the frequency of auto injury claims rose 26 percent. These findings are revealed in a study by the Insurance Research Council (IRC).

In 1980, property damage liability (PD) claim frequency rates, which approximate auto accident rates in the United States, were 4.94 per 100 insured cars. They declined to 4.13 per 100 insured cars in 2000. In contrast, the frequency of auto injury claims under the bodily injury liability (BI) coverage were 0.88 per 100 insured cars in 1980 and reached a high of 1.22 per 100 insured cars in 1995 before gradually decreasing to 1.11 per 100 insured cars in 2000.

"The overall increase in auto injury claims, coupled with declining accident rates suggests that people are more willing to file injury claims than they have been in the past," commented Elizabeth A. Sprinkel, senior vice president of the IRC. "One possible reason for the trend is that BI claims can include pain and suffering awards that are often several times greater than the amount of accident-related losses sustained by claimants. These large awards provide a significant incentive to file BI claims," Sprinkel said.

DROWSY DRIVERS

No one knows for sure whether there has been a rise in drowsy driving, but many transportation safety experts say they are increasingly aware and concerned about the problem, according to the New York Times. Estimates by a group of international transportation safety experts propose that as many as million accidents each year in this country-about 20 percent of the total-are related to driver fatigue.

Experts say the problem has grown for a number of reasons, including:

- the impact of 9/11-people are not flying as much and instead are driving long distances
- the increased use of medications
- an aging society
- undiagnosed or untreated sleep disorders
- jet-lagged drivers
- the need to work several jobs to support families
- long commutes

What are needed, officials agree, are surefire ways to detect drivers who are too tired to drive safely, effective ways to alert them to the fact, and a means to keep them awake or get them off the road before it is too late. As a result, researchers are developing a number of novel ways to detect sleepy drivers and warn them that they may fall asleep at the wheel. Various companies have produced more than 100 devices to detect drowsy driving, but none of them have been adequately tested for effectiveness and reliability.

I.B.M. has been working on a dashboard-mounted device that shoots a jet of cold water at sleepy drivers and, at the same time, rolls down windows, sounds an alarm, and switches radio stations. The device detects drowsiness by asking the driver questions and monitoring the responses for speed and clarity. The company hopes to make the device an integral part of new cars within five years.

The problem is finding something that works reliably for everyone, or nearly everyone, in nearly every situation.

TREASURY ISSUES GUIDELINES TO ALLOW GREATER FLEXIBILITY IN VEHICLE WRITE-OFF

One of the more perplexing sections of the IRS code for small businesses to navigate and understand is how and when to depreciate a vehicle that is used for business. One of the major determining factors of whether you can use a generous liberal standard of write-offs or the very restrictive rules that fall under Section 280F is if the Gross Vehicle Weight is over 6000 pounds. Generally, if a vehicle is over 6000 pounds the liberal rules apply; under, the restrictive rules are in control.

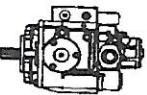

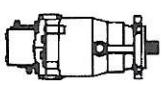

This summer, the Treasury Department issued regulations that took a step forward in making that determination less dependent on the 6000 pound test. Basically, the regulation says that if you buy a light truck or van of any weight (presumably an SUV falls under this category) and make modifications that will render it fit for only business use, then you may use the more liberal write-off sections of the code.

What changes you would have to make is still a bit unclear, but outfitting the truck with racks, removing the right front seat, or installing specialized equipment in the back may all qualify.

Although the U.S. Chamber of Commerce appreciates the step forward the Treasury made in its release, it is not as far as they could or should have gone. Furthermore, legislative action is needed to address the complicated, convoluted nature of section 280F and its application to the business use of all vehicles. The U.S. Chamber of Commerce is committed to working with Congress on a legislative fix that will allow businesses to write-off their vehicles on the basis of the percentage of business use and not the cost or weight of the vehicle.

GABBING WITH THE GALS...

Seems as if it has been ages since we visited with all of you; guess it must have been busy here, right? Am very happy to say that we did find a used IBM typewriter – found out that IBM quit making them in 1985! And this one is just like the one I have at home so am very much “at home” with it. These new technological ones are too much hassle for me since my idea has always been do it the shortest and easiest way, so didn’t care for the new ones where you have to depress first this key and that key to accomplish your purpose. And when there are different keys to be depressed according to what you hope to accomplish, how do you go about remembering all those keys? Seems that if something is simple anymore then it is of no use. Simple just went the way of convenience, a human voice, etc. Technology is good in many places, but there are places where it does not belong. So there.

With the new year upon us, maybe it is time to take stock and find out what we can do differently that will be good for us and all around us. No, not a New Year’s Resolution please, those are very seldom kept. But there is some breathing room between the Christmas rush and the ILICA convention and perhaps that will be the time to do this. Will share with you on of the birthday cards hubby Clyde received: on the front it said “Are you having another birthday?” and one the inside: “Weren’t you old enough last year?” The answer is of course, but how can you stop Father Time? We try, but the old codger just keeps on a-running and we have to try to keep up with it. Guess we’ll just keep on a-tryin’ on a day-to-day basis; don’t like to think of the alternative! According to someone named Alex Woollcott there is no such thing in anyone’s life as an unimportant day; as we grow older we understand this better. We could all probably think of one or two things important that happened each day if we just tried. That might possibly be a goal to try this year – to write down something important each day or more than one thing if that happens; keep for reference for that book you will write “someday”!

What do you do with all the mail you receive asking for donations? My name must be on everyone’s mailing list as this year probably half a dozen have been received that never appeared before. What with the government telling us that some of those “poor people” on the list were actually AlQuida people collecting, it makes one wonder where the money would go. Rather than take a chance, the waste basket receives them all except for the ones we know are bona fide, and have been for years. And we never return any calls on the phone that promise a prize, trip or whatever. One lady in a town not far from us received a call that she had won over $90 thou and then asked her to send $991 to help with the expenses of the prize. Duh! She was smart and could see that it was a scam and acted as if she would do this. Then called a son who is in the justice department and they made arrangements to try to get a line on them to get them out of business. So don’t know if that happened or not but the lady definitely did not send any money. So don’t know if that happened or not but the lady definitely did not send any money. Beware of al calls, we have to have our brain in gear and recognize dishonesty when we hear it. I do believe also that every catalog company has obtained my address from some that I have ordered from. Even if you never order from them they still send them. Nowadays they are also relegated to the “burn bin” and this Christmas season they inundated us with them. It would cost a lot of postage to write and ask to be taken off the list and with no promise that it would be, so what is a person to do? Just burn burn burn I guess, right?

Well it seems that I will be able to make the convention this year and am really looking forward to it. Hope to see many of you and renew our friendships once again. Since we haven’t (as of this writing) received much in the way of snow we hope it will not wait until the middle of January to visit us. But, it will take more than snow to stop us, won’t it? Many would be disappointed to have to miss so we will take a more positive attitude and pretend it will not snow. We could repeat “it will not snow” as Dorothy did when she came home from the Land of Oz – “there’s no place like home, there’s no place like home.” Today my surgeon released me from care and it is like “Hey, everyone, I’m free, I’m free!” To make a long story short, there was another surgery in June because Ramblin’ Rose was ramblin’ and had a bad fall which made the operation necessary. Still not 100% but probably as good as it will get. Use the cane most times but venture without it more and more. Sure helps when you are trying to put a meal on the table. Plus by the time you put the cane down it’s not easy to remember just where you put it down and the it’s “let’s find the can time” again. I have been known to leave the house without it because of memory, so maybe that is a good sign.

The word for this issue is “unimportant”. There is a book that has been out for some time titled “Don’t sweat the little things” or something like that. Which is so true, because the little things seems to cause ulcers, stress, etc. However, our lives are probably full of unimportant things that we could get rid of (no, no Clyde, not you honey!) if we would obey Nike and just do it! This person has a bad habit of putting somethings aside with a promise to look at it again and decide if it is or is not important – Duh! – that time never comes, does it, and you’re still stuck with it. So that is one thing to work on, deciding what is important and what is not. For me, the best place to start is a drawer in the kitchen that holds odds and ends of this and that, some of which no one knows even what the article is. Many people hate cleaning out drawers but that has always been fun to me. And you usually find something that has either been lost or you didn’t realize was there – and then, of course, you will have to decide whether or not it is important or unimportant. Decisions, decisions!

Keep warm, decide what to do with the Christmas cards you received, look forward to convention and a great year wished to all from...

...Rambling Rose

STATE AG DIRECTOR INTRODUCES NEW ILLINOIS SPECIALTY CROPS LOGO; LOGO HIGHLIGHTS THE DIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS' AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTION

State Agriculture Director Chuck Hartke has introduced a new logo promoting Illinois specialty crops.

The sharp, full-color logo sports the slogan "Illinois: Where Fresh Is" and features a collection of produce grown in Illinois, including an apple, a cucumber, grapes, a peach, a pepper, a pumpkin, a tomato, an onion and a watermelon.

"Illinois agriculture is more than corn and soybeans," Hartke said. "We're certainly proud to be a leader in the production of those commodities.

But, Illinois' fertile soils and favorable climate also are suitable for growing a variety of other crops – everything from apples to wheat. This logo will raise consumer awareness about the diversity of our agricultural production and explain why Illinois is recognized as a world supplier of food."

Initially, the Illinois Department of Agriculture will provide the logo to specialty growers for use on packaging and in advertising. Ultimately, though, it hopes grocery stores will adopt the logo to identify sales space that has been devoted exclusively to Illinois produce.

"Proximity is a powerful marketing tool," Gib Frier, the department's bureau chief of Marketing and Promotion, said. "When given a choice, consumers prefer to buy homegrown food, especially fruits and vegetables. The specialty crops logo will enable them to easily find and fill their shopping carts with fresh, wholesome, Illinois produce and support our farmers at the same time."

A similar branding program has been proven to increase sales of Illinois processed food products 20 percent when the items are identified on store shelves.

HIP Advertising of Springfield, IL, created the logo with funds from a United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) grant. The grant also included $60,000 for advertising to promote the use of Illinois specialty crops statewide.

Agriculture is Illinois' top industry, employing nearly a quarter of the state's workforce. Sales of farm commodities alone total more than $7 billion annually.

While best known for growing corn and soybeans, Illinois is the largest producer of pumpkins in the nation and ranks among the top ten states in the production of other specialty crops such as asparagus, cauliflower, fresh cut herbs, green peas, lima beans, mustard greens and snap beans. It also is the eighth-leading producer of nursery and greenhouse crops with sales of $300 million, according to the 1997 U.S. Census of Agriculture.

(Editor's note: a copy of the logo can be downloaded at the Illinois Department of Agriculture's website. The address is www.agr.state.il.us.)

FUNNIES

One afternoon a man came home from work to find total mayhem in his house. His three children were outside, still in their pajamas, playing in the mud, with empty food boxes and wrappers strewn all around the front yard. The door of his wife's car was open, as was the front door to the house.

Proceeding into the entry, he found an even bigger mess. A lamp had been knocked over, and the throw rug was wadded against one wall. In the front room the TV was loudly blaring a cartoon channel, and the family room was strewn with toys and various items of clothing. In the kitchen, dishes filled the sink, breakfast food was spilled on the counter, dog food was spilled on the floor, a broken glass lay under the table, and a small pile of sand was spread by the back door.

He quickly headed up the stairs, stepping over toys and more piles of clothes, looking for his wife. He was worried she may be ill, or that something serious had happened.

He found her lounging in the bedroom, still curled in the bed in her pajamas, reading a novel.

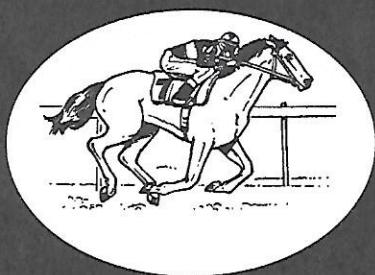

She looked up at him, smiled, and asked how his day went. He looked at her bewildered and asked, "What happened here today?"

She again smiled and answered, "You know every day when you come home from work and you ask me what in the world did I do today?"

"Yes" was his incredulous reply.

She answered, "Well, today I didn't do it."

Pre-Tour Packages

Monday, February 23, 2004

8:00am - 5:00pm Linkbelt & Caterpillar Tour

Get an up-close and personal tour of the LinkBelt large crane manufacturing facility, followed by a look at how Caterpillar assembles its undercarriage parts for distribution around the world.

8:00am - 5:00pm Glass and Bats Tour

Here's your chance to watch true artists create the mystery of a fine glasswok and the outstanding performance of the Official Bat of Major League Baseball - the Louisville Slugger!

Tuesday, February 24, 2004

8:00am - 5:00pm Horses, Hooch & History Tour

On this tour, you will get a behind-the-scenes look at what makes Kentucky truly special ... the horses, the bluegrass, the history and yes, even the hooch! We'll tour the Keeneland Race Course and see the Donamire Horse Farm. If the weather is favorable, we'll even get to watch some morning workouts for the horses. Then, it's off to Buffalo Trace Distillery, the first US Distillery to win the coveted "Distillery of the Year Award". You will see the process of making bourbon and even get a free sample taste! From the distillery it's on to visit the grave site of the most famous pioneer of all time, Daniel Boone!
